Article 3 – Responsibility; contribution; rights to receive and control information

1. An individual entrepreneur shall be personally liable to creditors with all of his/her assets for all obligations arising from his/her entrepreneurial activity.
2. (Deleted).
3. Partners of a general partnership and personally liable partners i.e. the general partners (komplementars) of a limited partnership shall be jointly liable to creditors for the obligations of the company, i.e. each partner with all of its assets shall be directly and immediately liable. Any agreement between the partners to the contrary shall be void as to any third person.
4. Limited partners (komandits) of a limited partnership, partners of a limited liability company, and partners of a joint-stock company or cooperative shall not be liable to creditors for the obligations of the company. Limited partners of a limited partnership, partners of a limited liability company, and partners of a joint-stock company or cooperative shall be liable to creditors up to the full amount of their pledged contribution if such liability arises before having made the full contribution agreed upon among the partners.

4¹. The partners shall conclude an agreement (charter) governing matters related to the business of the enterprise and/or relations of the partners. The section of the partners' agreement (charter) containing the data under Article 5 of this Law, and registered with the Register, shall be the registration application. The partners' agreements, which are not mandatory for registration, shall be in writing and may be executed in any language (Partners' Agreement (Charter)).

5. In founding the company, the partners shall agree on distribution of shares and state the amount of their respective contributions to the capital. Contribution may be made in the form of tangible and intangible assets, fulfilment of work and/or delivery of services.

5¹. If a change in the Charter concerns a partner's voting rights, shares in profit/loss or rights in connection with liquidation, such change shall be approved unanimously, unless otherwise provided for in a section of the Charter that has been unanimously approved by the partners.

5². No change in the Charter/Partners' Agreement, that cancels any registered right of a partner or assigns to such partner any obligation that directly and immediately affects the registered rights of such partner, may be made without the partner's consent.

6. A limited partner of a limited partnership, and the partners of a limited liability company, joint-stock company and cooperative, shall be personally liable to creditors of the company if they abuse the legal forms of limitation of liability.

7. If so provided for in the Charter, the partners may determine the manner and timeframe for making a contribution by each partner. If a partner fails to make an agreed contribution before the timeframe expires, the partner shall forfeit his/her share as well as any profits of the partially fulfilled obligations, unless otherwise provided for in the Charter.

8. If a dominant partner of an enterprise has intentionally abused his/her dominant position to the detriment of the company, he/she shall pay the corresponding compensation to the rest of the partners. A partner or a group of partners acting together, holding a controlling vote at the Meeting of Partners, shall be considered a dominant partner.

9. Partners of a general partnership, limited partnership, limited liability company, joint-stock company and cooperative shall have equal rights and obligations in equal circumstances, unless otherwise provided for in this Law or in the Charter. The Charter may define different rights and obligations irrespective of the contributions made by the partners.

10. Each partner shall have the right to obtain a copy of the annual report and all publications of the company. In addition, any partner may check the correctness of the annual report and may familiarize himself/herself with the company documents personally or through an auditor, and may request clarifications from the enterprise bodies upon submitting the annual report, but prior to its approval. If the annual report contains a substantial error or misstatement, the expenses related to the audit shall be borne by the enterprise. The rights of control and audit may be limited only by this Law, but may be broadened by the Charter of the company.

11. State-owned shares and stocks shall be privatized in the manner provided for by the Law of Georgia on State Property. For privatizing shares or stocks or share certificates directly or through a broker, by public or private offer, or by a different form of offer related to the practice of a recognized foreign stock exchange or on international capital markets at a given time, the Charter may provide for rights and obligations of shareholders or stockholders different from those envisaged by this Law except that they shall not prejudice the right to receive a dividend.

Law of Georgia No 3535 of 25 July 2006 - LHG I, No 37, 7.8.2006, Art. 276

Law of Georgia No 5913 of 14 March 2008 – LHG I, No 7, 26.3.2008, Art. 33

Article 14² - Cancellation of a registration decision, revocation of the registration of a business entity on the basis of defect identification

1. The registration decision of the registration authority shall be an administrative-legal act and can be cancelled by a court decision under the Law of Georgia on Insolvency Proceedings or in the manner laid down by the legislation of Georgia for cancellation of administrative-legal acts, except in the case stipulated by the fourth paragraph of this article.

1¹. If an enterprise is declared bankrupt under Article 20(9) of the Law of Georgia on Insolvency Proceedings, the person authorised to represent the debtor shall submit the court decision, within 30 days after issuing it, to the registration authority that is obliged to revoke the registration of the enterprise.

2. If the registration of a business entity, established as a result of reorganisation, is revoked by cancelling an unlawful decision of the registration authority on registration under the first paragraph of this article, then the decision on cancellation shall reinstate the condition before the reorganisation, and the business entity existing before the reorganisation shall be an assignee of the deregistered business entity.

3. If the registration of an individual entrepreneur is revoked, the relevant natural person shall be the legal successor of the entrepreneur.

4. If the cancellation of an unlawful registration decision by the registration authority terminates the registration of a registered business entity so that it has no successor, the registration authority shall issue an administrative-legal act identifying a registration defect and shall set a 30-day time limit for the business entity to remedy such defect, in respect of which an indication shall be made in the Entrepreneurial Registry. The effectiveness of registered records shall be suspended until the defect is remedied and no extract from the Entrepreneurial Registry shall be issued.

5. The decision of identifying a registration defect referred to in the fourth paragraph of this article shall state the nature of the defect, as well as the consequences of failure to remedy it.

6. If the defect referred to in the fourth paragraph of this article is not remedied within the fixed timeframe, the registration authority shall issue an administrative-legal act on initiating a compulsory liquidation proceeding against the business entity. In such case, the partners/persons authorised to appoint a liquidator of the enterprise may appoint a liquidator and go through the procedures laid down by Article 14 of this Law. If the partners/persons authorised to appoint a liquidator fail to appoint a liquidator, a compulsory liquidation proceeding shall be finished upon expiration of the total timeframe of liquidation laid down by this Law.

7. If the basis for identifying a registration defect by the registration authority is the fact that one of the partners/shareholders is unidentifiable, the rest of the partners/shareholders may apply to court to establish the identity of such shareholder. If a legally effective court decision establishes that the shareholder cannot be identified, this shall serve as the basis for terminating the compulsory liquidation process and for apportioning the share of the non-identified partner among the remaining partners proportionately to their shares. The failure of the remaining partner(s) to exercise the right within the period of the compulsory liquidation proceeding shall serve as the basis for revoking the registration of the enterprise, and the title of the non-identified partner to the assets remaining after the liquidation of the enterprise shall be transferred to the State.

8. Filing an administrative complaint in relation to the initiation by the registration authority of a compulsory liquidation proceeding against an enterprise and lodging a suit with a court on the matters referred to in this article shall suspend the period for the compulsory liquidation proceeding until the relevant administrative decision becomes effective.

2. The partners may transform an enterprise from one legal form into an enterprise of another legal form. In such case, the partners' rights shall be redistributed under the relevant decision, in consideration of restrictions applicable to that legal form.

3. Unless otherwise provided for by the Charter, the passage of a resolution to transform a joint-stock company into a limited liability company or a limited liability company into a joint-stock company shall require 75% of the votes of the voting partner(s) present. In all other cases, the decision shall be unanimous.

4. Enterprises may merge with each other. Unless otherwise provided for by the Charter, deciding to merge with a limited liability company, joint-stock company or cooperative shall require 75% of the votes of the voting partner(s) present. An enterprise that has taken over another enterprise, as well as the new enterprise created as the result of merger shall be the successor of the former enterprise(s).

5. An enterprise may split into two or more enterprises and those enterprises may continue business as independent enterprises in their own legal forms. The decision regarding the split may show that former partners participate with different share percentages in the new enterprise. The enterprises created as the result of a split shall be jointly responsible for the obligations that existed before the division of the former enterprise, and the enterprise that becomes an assignee of the original enterprise shall be identified in the decision regarding the split.

6. The partner's decision to reorganise an enterprise shall be subject to the registration and notice procedures stipulated by Article 14(3 and 4) of this Law. Under the changes in the legal form of an enterprise, during which the capability of the enterprise to satisfy its creditors does not decrease, as well as if the enterprise takes over its 100% owned subsidiary, the publication and notice procedures indicated in this paragraph shall not apply, and the creditors shall not be entitled to exercise the powers given in the eighth paragraph of this article. Transformation of a joint-stock company into a limited liability company and of a limited liability company into a joint-stock company shall not be deemed as a decrease in the capability to satisfy creditors.

6¹. If the commencement of reorganisation of an entity is requested, the registration document shall indicate the type of reorganisation and information on the results of reorganisation.

7. The existence of liability shall serve as the basis for suspending the registration proceeding except for the case where the reorganisation of an enterprise does not decrease the capability to satisfy creditors or the creditors agree to the reorganisation. Owing a debt to the State shall not serve as the basis for suspending the registration proceeding if the reorganisation requested is of an enterprise with more than 50% state ownership.

8. From the moment of receipt of notice to completion of the reorganisation process, creditors may request from the enterprise to fulfil its obligations ahead of schedule.

9. Registration of mergers or splits of enterprises shall be carried out according to the registration rules provided for by this Law, the Law of Georgia on Public Registry and Instructions covering service charges relevant to the number of entities created as the result of such merger/split-up.

10. The Instructions shall lay down additional terms and conditions for reorganising an enterprise.

Such partner shall be deemed a proper claimant, if the company does not file an action against the third party within 90 days after receiving a written request to that effect, or fails to prove that such an action prejudices the interests of the company. If the court satisfies the claim of the partner, the company shall be obliged to indemnify the partner for any reasonable out-of-court expenses of the action, including attorney's fees. However, the company shall be released from paying such expenses if it proves that satisfying the action is detrimental to the company. If the partner is deemed an improper claimant, or the claim is not satisfied, the partner shall be liable for any costs and expenses reasonably incurred by the company in the action. Considering the property status of a partner, the court may postpone the partner's date for payment of court expenses.

This time limit shall be counted from the moment when the notification is delivered to a partner.
3. The notification shall be sent by registered mail or via technical means (by telephone and/or email).
4. The notification sent via technical means shall be considered as an officially delivered notification to the appropriate person.
5. A responsible person shall personally make a choice of the technical means for sending the notification.
6. The notification shall be considered as being delivered to the partner from the moment of its publication.
7. The Charter of a limited liability company may define the procedures different from those established under paragraphs 3-6 of this article; it may also revoke the pre-emptive right to acquire shares under this article. A meeting of partners shall make a decision on these issues (including on making a respective amendment to the company Charter) by a simple majority of votes of persons present, unless a higher quorum is required by the Charter.
8. For purposes of this Law, the pre-emptive right to acquire shares shall be considered the obligation of a partner to sell its shares to the rest of the partners at the same price and with the same terms as it intends to sell the shares to a third person.

Chapter IV - Joint-Stock Company

Article 51 – Concept; Company Shareholders Register

1. A joint-stock company shall be a company whose capital is divided into shares of a certain class and quantity as determined by the Charter of the company. A share shall be an intangible registered security that evidences the obligations of a joint-stock company to a partner (shareholder) and the rights of the shareholder in the joint-stock company. The Charter of a joint-stock company may determine a value below which the values of shares may not be set for the initial issuance of the shares for a given class (par value). The liability of a joint-stock company to its creditors shall be limited to all of its assets. The shareholder of a joint-stock company shall not be liable for the obligations of the joint-stock company. When founding a joint-stock company, the capital can be determined in any amount.

2. A shareholder's title to a share shall be evidenced by a record in the Shareholders Register of the joint-stock company or with a nominee holder's record. The shareholder shall be given an extract from the Shareholders Register of a joint-stock company or an extract for a nominee holder.

3. The joint-stock company, whose number of shareholders exceeds 50, shall be obliged to maintain the Shareholders Register through an independent registrar under contract made with such registrar. If the number of shareholders equals to or is less than 50, the company can maintain the Shareholders Register on its own or through an independent registrar, except for a publicly accountable enterprise under the Securities Market Law of Georgia, in which case the Shareholders Register shall be maintained by an independent registrar.

4. The Shareholders Register for a joint-stock company shall be maintained according to the appropriate procedures adopted by the National Bank of Georgia.

Article 52 – Types (classes) of shares; other securities convertible into shares

1. Unless otherwise provided for by the Charter of the enterprise, shares may be common or preferred. One common share shall ensure a right to one vote at the general meeting of shareholders, while a preferred share shall provide no right to vote. A preferred share shall ensure receipt of dividends at a fixed rate. The amount of, and procedure for, receipt of dividends shall be provided for in Article 8 of this Law and in the Charter of an enterprise. The Charter may define a different determination of rights for common and preferred shares. All shares of the same class shall provide equal rights to their holders. Any promise that future dividends will certainly be paid shall be void.

1¹. In addition to the classes of shares provided for by this article, a general meeting of shareholders of the company may decide on additional classes of shares. The quantity of shares of any class, the associated rights and duties, as well as the conditions for changing them must be reflected in the Charter of a company (and in the case of public offering – in the issue prospectus as well) before placing the shares of that class. After placing shares, changes to the rights and duties associated with placed shares, as well as to the procedure for changing the shares of that class as provided for by the Charter shall not be permitted except for cases under paragraph 1² of this article.

1². The resolution of the general meeting of shareholders to change (cancel, reduce and/or grant) the voting right shall become effective only if a consent thereto is given by more than 75% of the holders of those class shares, the right to vote of which is affected by such decision.

2. Transfer of any class of share (except for publicly offered securities defined by the Securities Market Law of Georgia) may be subject to approval by the company. The procedure for company approval of the transfer of shares shall be laid down by the Charter of the company before placing the shares.

3. A joint-stock company may, as provided for by law, issue other securities convertible into shares.

Article 53 – Rights and obligations of shareholders

1. Unless otherwise provided for by law, the sole obligation of a shareholder is to pay contributions to receive the appropriate number of shares. Any obligation assigned to a shareholder under the Charter, other than those provided for by law, shall be void.

1¹. If a decision on issuing new shares is made, a shareholder shall have the pre-emptive right to acquire the new shares in proportion to his/her own shares. This right may be revoked by decision of the general meeting of shareholders in accordance with Article 54 of this Law. Further, the decision to revoke the pre-emptive right to acquire new shares may be made by the general meeting of shareholders only on the basis of a written report of the Director or the Supervisory Board specifying the reason (reasons) for revoking the pre-emptive right to acquire the new shares.

1². A joint-stock company shall inform the holders of at least 1% of the voting shares about their exercising of the pre-emptive right to acquire shares by registered mail. The joint-stock company shall inform the rest of the shareholders about their exercising the pre-emptive right to acquire shares by registered mail or by way of publishing the information on its own website or in the Legislative Herald of Georgia. A joint-stock company must allow the shareholders at least 10 days for their exercising this right. This time limit shall be counted from the moment when the notification is delivered to an appropriate person or the information is published. This paragraph shall not apply to a public offering of securities under the Law of Georgia on Securities Market.

1³. The procedures established under this article shall accordingly apply to the emission of convertible or exchangeable securities/the making of a loan by a joint-stock company, although not to the exercising of the right to convert or to exchange based on the securities/loan obligation.

1⁴. Unless otherwise defined by the Charter of a joint-stock company, the pre-emptive right to acquire shares shall not apply to:

a) the shares emitted for remunerating members, representatives, employees and related persons of the administrative bodies of an enterprise or its subsidiary enterprise (enterprises), including for satisfying the rights based on their own convertible securities or options. Unless the shares emitted for this purpose are used as intended, the pre-emptive right of acquisition of shares shall apply to them;

b) the shares emitted against non-monetary payment;

c) the own shares redeemed by the joint-stock company, in case they are re-placed (re-sold).

2. The share of a shareholder in the profits shall be determined according to the number and class of shares. Contributions, which are not fully paid in, shall participate in the distribution of profits proportionately to the amount of the contributions made unless otherwise provided for by the Charter.

3¹. At a general meeting, any shareholder may request from the directors and the supervisory board clarifications for each item of the agenda and express his/her opinion. If the request is submitted in writing ten days prior to the general meeting, the request must be satisfied or discussed as one of the items on the agenda. Information may be withheld only if it is in the substantial interests of the company, explanations of which must be in writing.

3². Shareholders – owners of 5% of shares may request a special inspection of business transactions or of the annual balance sheet in whole if they believe that there are irregularities.

3³. Shareholders or a group of shareholders – owners of 5% of any class of shares may request the body designated by the Charter (Supervisory Board or Directors) to call an extraordinary meeting of shareholders of the enterprise. The request shall be submitted in writing and shall include the agenda items whose content shall comply with the legislation of Georgia and shall be reasonably in line with the goals and business character of the company. In such case, the Supervisory Board or Directors shall be obliged to hold a general meeting not later than three months after receiving the written request. The Supervisory Board or Directors, shareholders or a group of shareholders of 5% of any class of shares (according to paragraph 3¹ of this article) shall have the right to amend the agenda submitted by the shareholders. The shareholders or a group of shareholders of 5% of any class of shares may request that an extraordinary meeting is called not earlier than one month after the date of the last meeting.

3⁴. If the shareholders or a group of shareholders of 5% of any class of shares (initiators of the meeting) apply to the body designated by the charter of the company (the Supervisory Board or Directors) to call an extraordinary meeting and the sole agenda of the meeting is to request the removal of the Director(s), including the Director who is the Chairperson of the Supervisory Board or a member of the Supervisory Board, the meeting shall be held under the rules laid down in this paragraph.

If within 20 days of such request the Supervisory Board does not call an extraordinary meeting, the meeting may be held by the initiators of the meeting who have applied to the body designated by the charter of the company (the Supervisory Board or Directors) with such request.

In such case, the initiators of the meeting shall send to all the shareholders of the company by registered mail, invitations to the special general meeting according to the provisions of this paragraph, by indicating the sole item of the agenda. No additional item can be added to the agenda. In such case, the extraordinary meeting shall be authorised if attended by the partner(s) holding at least 75% of total votes. If a quorum is not reached, the initiators of the meeting may re-call the meeting not earlier than 20 days after the date of the first meeting. The initiators of the meeting shall re-call an extraordinary general meeting in the manner laid down by this paragraph. That meeting shall be authorised if attended by the partner(s) holding at least 75% of total votes. If the quorum is not reached, the initiators of the meeting may apply to a court according to the legal address of the company. The court shall order the body designated by the charter of the company (the Supervisory Board or Directors) to hold an extraordinary meeting within three months after giving the judgement.

3⁵. Holders of 5% of any class of shares may request from an appropriate management body of a joint-stock company copies of the agreements concluded on behalf of the company and/or information on the agreements to be concluded and/or copies of the agreement-related decisions.

4. Shareholders may exercise their voting rights with respect to their own interests except in the cases where the expected decision concerns conducting a transaction with them or the approval of their report. If a dominant shareholder of a joint-stock company existing within the territory of Georgia intentionally uses his/her dominant position to the prejudice of the joint-stock company, such shareholder shall compensate the remaining shareholders. A dominant shareholder shall be deemed a shareholder or a group of shareholders acting together, who has (have) the practical ability to substantially influence the results of voting at a general meeting of the joint-stock company.

5. If a joint-stock company does not assert its claim against any third party, a shareholder may instead, and to the benefit of the company, lodge a suit on his/her behalf for the fulfilment of that claim. Such shareholder shall be deemed a proper claimant, if the company does not file an action against the third party within 90 days after receiving a written request to that effect, or fails to prove that such an action prejudices the interests of the company. If the court satisfies the claim of the shareholder, the company shall be obliged to indemnify the shareholder for any reasonable out-of-court expenses of the action, including attorney's fees. However, the company shall be released from paying such expenses if it proves that satisfying the action is detrimental to the company. If the shareholder is deemed an improper claimant, or the claim is not satisfied, the shareholder shall be liable for any costs and expenses reasonably incurred by the company in the action. Considering the property status of a shareholder, the court may postpone the shareholder's date for payment of court expenses.

Article 53¹ - Redemption of shares by the company

1. A shareholder may request, in the manner laid down by this article, the company to evaluate and redeem his/her shares if he/she, at a general meeting, has not supported the decision that substantially violates the shareholder's rights, or is related to reorganisation of the enterprise. The Charter of the company may provide in detail for the procedures of evaluation and redemption of shares.

2. A company intending to make a decision under the first paragraph of this article shall give, in the notice calling the respective general meeting, a detailed description of the question at issue, the related right to request redemption and the procedure for performance of such redemption.

3. A shareholder may, within 45 days after making the decision under the first paragraph of this article, request in writing that the company redeem his/her shares. The right to such request shall not exist if:

- a) the shareholder has not fully paid the contribution for such shares;
- b) the shareholder has purchased those shares after sending the notice under the second paragraph of this article.

4. A share shall be redeemed at its market value fixed on the day previous to the notice made under the second paragraph of this article except in those cases where any other rule for determining the fair value of the share is provided for by law due to low liquidity of shares or for any other reason. In applying such rule, the Supervisory Board shall duly substantiate its decision.

5. The decision of the Supervisory Board on the number and redemption price of redeemable shares must be made within 30 days after expiration of the term specified in the third paragraph of this article, and the share redemption amount must be paid not later than 30 days after such decision is made.

6. Any shareholder, who disagrees with the share redemption terms under the decision by the Supervisory Board, may appeal to a court within 14 days after notification of the decision.

7. No redemption of shares may be allowed if:

- a) the amount payable for redemption of shares exceeds 25% of the company's capital;
- b) at the moment of redemption the company meets the conditions laid down by the Law of Georgia on Insolvency Proceedings or such conditions may arise as a result of the redemption of shares.

8. If the number of proposed redeemable shares exceeds the limit allowed by the seventh paragraph of this article, such shares must be redeemed from various sellers on a pro rata basis.

9. The company may, at the stock exchange, purchase and then alienate its own placed shares (treasury shares) at its sole discretion. The quantity of the treasury shares may in no event exceed 25% of placed shares unless a lower limit is provided for by the Charter. In counting votes, distributing dividends, and during a liquidation process and for purpose of computing other rights arising from shareholding, treasury shares and shares owned by subsidiary enterprises of the company shall not be taken into account.

Article 53² - Mandatory tender offer

1. If a shareholder or a group of shareholders acting by agreement (for the purposes of this article – ‘the buyer’) purchases a lot of shares that results in taking control of more than one half of the voting shares of a joint stock company, he/she/it shall be obliged to make a tender offer under the Law of Georgia on Security Market for buying outstanding shares, no later than 45 days after the above fact, or shall bring down the quantity of shares below one half of the voting shares under his/her/its control within the same time frame. This requirement shall not apply if:

a) more than one half of the voting shares of a joint stock company came into possession of the buyer through the tender offer made under the Law of Georgia on Security Market by offering other shareholders to redeem all the remaining shares;

b) a person holds the above shares acting as an agent of any other person or persons, including for issuing the Global Depositary Receipts. In this case, the person or the group of persons acting under agreement that directly or indirectly control more than one half of the voting shares of a joint-stock company shall be obliged to make a mandatory tender offer.

2. An auditor or a brokerage firm shall establish the offered redemption price. The offered redemption price must be no less than the maximum price that the redeeming shareholder has paid within the last six months for the company’s share of this class. The auditor or the brokerage firm shall draw up a report indicating documented facts establishing the basis for the offered redemption price. The buyer shall reimburse the expenses of the auditor or the brokerage firm. The buyer shall also be obliged to provide the auditor or the brokerage firm with all information available to him/her/it on the purchase of shares. The auditor or the brokerage firm shall be held responsible with all his/her/its assets for damages he/she it caused to the shareholder as a result of negligence or deliberately misestimating of the offered redemption price.

3. Until the end of the tender offer under the first paragraph of this article, the buyer may not exercise the voting rights of more than 50% of votes under his/her/its control at a General Meeting.

2. The court shall decide on a mandatory selling-out of shares as determined in the Civil Procedure Code of Georgia. The fair value and the date of share redemption shall be fixed by court decision on a mandatory selling-out of shares as determined in the Civil Procedure Code of Georgia.

All transactions involving the shares to be redeemed except for the acts under this article shall be discontinued from the redemption record date until the completion of the shares redemption procedure. The registrar shall compile the register which is a list of all registered holders as of the redemption record date specifying their identity, address and quantity of shares held by them, if applicable, but in the case the identity and/or address of the registered shareholder cannot be determined, the registrar shall make an appropriate record (comment) in the Redemption Register. On the basis of presenting by the buyer the documents (including a document certifying a complete deposition of the amount to be redeemed) certifying the act having been performed in accordance with the first and the second paragraphs of this article, the registrar shall re-register all shares in the name of the buyer. Article 54 – General Meeting

1. The regular General Meeting shall be held annually within two months after preparation of the annual balance sheet unless otherwise determined by the Charter of a joint stock company. The meeting shall discuss the annual results and other possible issues of the agenda. In other cases, an extraordinary General Meeting shall be held at the request of the directors or the Supervisory Board, or if so provided in this Law – at the request of the shareholders. The Supervisory Board shall fix the record date for the General Meeting. The record date may not be 45 days earlier than convening the meeting or later than the date of announcement of convening the meeting. The only shareholders authorised to participate in the General Meeting shall be those having the property right to shares on the record date of the Meeting.

1¹. The general meeting need not be convened if a shareholder with more than 75% of the votes decides on the issues to be discussed. This decision shall be equal to the minutes of a meeting and shall be considered to be the decision made by the meeting. In this case, the rest of the shareholders shall receive a notice of the decision. The General Meeting of Shareholders shall be held if the quantity of the shares mentioned in this article is held by more than one shareholder.

2. A General Meeting of a joint stock company shall be convened at the legal address of the company or, at any other location in the territory of Georgia by the body defined under the Charter (the Supervisory Board or the Directors) 20 days after the announcement of the meeting is published in the official gazette of Georgia determined by the National Bank of Georgia, or the invitation is sent to the shareholders. 3. A shareholder may obtain an advance confirmation of his/her right to participate in the meeting, and of the number of votes at his/her disposal under the procedure defined in the second paragraph of this article. A shareholder shall participate in the meeting on the basis of an identity card, a neutral identity card or a neutral travel document, as well as based on the Shareholders Register data presented at the meeting. Representation by a written power of attorney shall be permitted.

4. The Chairperson of the Supervisory Board shall preside at the General Meeting. In the absence of the Chairperson, his/her deputy shall preside and in his/her absence, the meeting shall be presided over by one of the directors. If all of the above are absent, the Chairperson of the meeting shall be elected by the General Meeting by a simple majority of votes present.

5. Unless otherwise determined by the Charter, the General Meeting shall be duly constituted if a partner (partners) holding more than half of the voting shares is present at the meeting. If the meeting is not duly constituted, a new meeting with the same agenda shall be convened under the procedure provided for in the second paragraph of this article within the time frame defined by the Chairperson. In this case, the meeting shall be duly constituted if a partner (partners) holding at least 25 per cent of voting shares is present. If the meeting is still not duly constituted a new meeting with the same agenda shall be convened under the procedure provided in the second paragraph of this article within the time frame defined by the Chairperson. The above meeting shall be duly constituted irrespective of the number of partners with voting shares present.

- f) elect members of the Supervisory Board or recall them from the Board, as well as determine the tenure of electing the members of the Board;
- g) approve the reports of the directors and the Supervisory Board;
- h) decide on the question of remuneration for the members of the Supervisory Board;
- i) elect and remove an external auditor;
- j) make decisions on participating in court proceedings against the Supervisory Board and the directors, as well as appoint its representative for these proceedings;
- k) make decisions on the purchase, alienation (or similar interrelated transactions), or encumbering company property with a value exceeding one-half of the value of the company assets unless otherwise defined by the Charter of the company, except for the transactions in the ordinary course of business.

The Charter may distribute the powers specified in this paragraph among the Supervisory Board and/or the director (directors).

7. Unless otherwise provided for in the Charter of a joint stock company, the decisions under paragraph 6(a-c) of Article 54 shall require consent of the partners holding more than 75 per cent of the voting shares present. All other decisions under the sixth paragraph of Article 54 shall require consent of the partners holding more than 50 per cent of the voting shares present.

8. When electing members to the Supervisory Board, shareholders may agree to apply the vote accumulation method as follows:
