Article 175 – Obligation to tolerate neighbouring nuisances

1. The owner of a plot of land or any other immovable property may not prohibit the introduction of gases, steam, smells, smoke, soot, warmth, noise, vibrations and similar influences emanating from another plot of land to the extent that they do not interfere with the use of his/her plot of land, or interfere with it only to an insignificant extent.

2. The same rule shall apply to the extent that a material interference is caused by use of the other plot of land or other immovable property and cannot be prevented by measures that are deemed to be regular economic activities for users of this kind.

3. If the owner is bound to tolerate such a nuisance, he/she may demand from the owner of the other plot of land appropriate monetary compensation, where the nuisance exceeds the use regarded as customary in the location and is beyond economically permissible limits.

Article 176 – Unallowable encroachment

An owner of a plot of land may demand the prohibition of erection and utilisation of such buildings on neighbouring plots that impermissibly encroach on the right to use his plot of land and such encroachment is foreseeably evident beforehand.

Article 177 – Demand for elimination of danger

If a plot of land is endangered by the collapse of a building from a neighbouring plot, the owner may demand that the neighbour take the precautions necessary to avert the danger. It shall not be allowed to change the direction of or manipulate watercourses and groundwater running through several plots of land in such a manner that may reduce the amount of the water and/or deteriorate its quality. It shall not be allowed to interfere with the natural flow of rivers.

Article 178 – Right of the owner of a neighbouring plot of land to the fruit

1. The fruit of a tree or bush that falls onto a neighbouring plot of land shall be deemed to be the fruit of that plot.

2. The owner of a plot of land may cut off the branches or roots of a tree or of a bush that intrude from the neighbouring plot of land.

Article 179 – Monetary compensation for the obligation of tolerance

1. If when erecting a building the owner of a plot of land unintentionally encroaches on a neighbouring plot of land, then the owner of the neighbouring plot shall tolerate the encroachment, unless the latter objects to the encroachment before or immediately upon detecting it.

2. The encroaching neighbour shall pay monetary compensation annually in advance.

Article 180 – Right of way of necessity

1. If a plot of land lacks a connection to public roads, electricity, oil, gas and water supply lines that are necessary for its proper use, the owner may require that a neighbour tolerate the use of his/her plot to create the necessary connection. The neighbours on whose plots of land the right of way of necessity or transmission line passes shall be given monetary compensation which, by agreement of the parties, may be made as a lump-sum payment.

2. The obligation to tolerate the right of way of necessity or transmission line shall not arise if an already existing connection to the plot of land was discontinued by the voluntary action of the owner.

Article 181 – Duty to mark boundaries

1. The owner of a plot of land may require from the owner of a neighbouring plot of land that the latter participate in erecting fixed boundary markers or in restoring an already existing boundary marker if it has been damaged or become unrecognisable. The expenses for marking boundaries shall be borne equally by the neighbours unless otherwise stipulated by either mutual agreement or another legal relation.

2. If exact boundary lines cannot be determined, then the boundary markers shall be established according to the actual possession by the neighbours. If actual possession cannot be exactly determined, then the disputed land shall be divided in equal parts between the plots of land. If such division results in an unjust outcome, then a court shall determine the boundary lines based on the application of one of the parties.

Article 182 – Right to use boundary installations

1. When two plots of land are separated by a fence or any other structure used as a boundary, the owners of the plots of land shall be presumed to have equal right to use the structure, unless the outward features of the structure expressly indicate that it belongs to one of the neighbours alone.

2. If both neighbours are entitled to joint use of the boundary structure, then each of them may use the structure so as not to obstruct joint use by the other neighbour.

3. The expenses of maintaining and keeping the structure shall be borne equally by the neighbours.

4. As long as one of the neighbours has an interest in the existence of the boundary structure, it may not be removed or altered without the consent of that neighbour.

If the acquirer delays the payment of the price, and the transferor repudiates the contract, then the parties shall return the performance already rendered bilaterally.

All other rights to the thing shall be extinguished simultaneously upon the acquisition of the ownership of the thing.

Article 199 – Assignment of claims

1. An owner of a claim (creditor) may assign the claim to a third person without the consent of the debtor, unless to do so would contravene either the essence of the obligation, the agreement with the debtor, or the law (assignment of claim). An agreement with the debtor on the inadmissibility of assignment of a claim may be made only if the debtor has a valid interest.

2. A claim shall be assigned under a contract concluded between the owner of the claim and a third party. In that case, the third party shall occupy the place of the original owner.

Article 202 – Order of priority of owners of a claim

I – Superficies

Article 233 – Concept

1. A plot of land may be transferred to another person for use for a fixed period of time in such a manner as to grant him/her the heritable and alienable right to erect on or beneath the plot some structure, as well as the right to lend or lease such right (superficies).

2. Superficies may extend to the part of a tract of land that is not necessary for building but allows for a better use of the structure.

3. The duration of superficies shall be determined by agreement of the parties and shall not exceed ninety nine years.

Law of Georgia No 2978 of 27 April 2010 – LHG I, No 24, 10.5.2010, Art. 144

Article 234 – Origin, acquisition and termination of the right of superficies. Ownership of superficies

1. The rules governing the acquisition of immovable things shall accordingly apply to the origin and acquisition of the right of superficies.

2. A structure erected under the right of superficies shall be deemed an essential component part of the right of superficies and shall be registered as the property of the person having the right of superficies.

3. Upon termination of the right of superficies, the structure erected under superficies shall become an essential component part of the plot of land.

Law of Georgia No 2978 of 27 April 2010 – LHG I, No 24, 10.5.2010, Art. 144

Article 235 – Transfer of superficies

If by agreement of the parties the consent of the owner of the plot of land is required to transfer or lease the right of superficies, the owner may withhold such consent only if there are significant grounds to do so.

Article 236 – Payment for the right of superficies

1. An owner of the right of superficies may be bound by contract to pay fee. This right of the owner of a plot of land shall be inseparable from the ownership of the plot of land.

2. The right of superficies may be unilaterally terminated by the owner in case of non-fulfilment of this obligation for two years, unless otherwise provided for under the agreement of the parties.

3. The parties may predetermine the superficies fee for a ten-year period. If economic conditions materially change, then the

Article 238 – Termination of the right of superficies

1. Termination of the right of superficies shall require consent of the owner.

2. The right of superficies shall not be terminated with the collapse of a structure erected on the plot of land.

Article 239 – Termination of non-gratuitous superficies

1. In case of expiration of the non-gratuitous superficies, unless otherwise provided for under the agreement of the parties, the owner of the plot of land shall pay the superficiary an appropriate compensation in the amount of two thirds of the value of the structure erected on the plot of land.

2. The owner of the plot of land may, in return for paying the compensation, extend the right of superficies for the superficiary for a period for which the structure erected on the plot of land is presumed to exist, unless otherwise provided for under the agreement of the parties. If the superficiary declines the extension of the right of superficies, he/she shall lose the right to claim compensation as well.

3. The superficiary may not remove the structure or its component parts after the right of superficies expires.

Law of Georgia No 4336 of 16 October 2015 – website, 20.10.2015

Article 240 – Registration of the claim for compensation in the Public Registry

2. If upon the expiration the right of superficies is still encumbered with a mortgage, then the mortgagee shall have a lien upon the claim for compensation.

Law of Georgia No 4336 of 16 October 2015 – website, 20.10.2015

Article 241 – Succession in title upon termination of superficies

II – Usufruct

Article 242 – Concept

An immovable thing may be transferred to the use of another person in such a manner as to grant to him/her the right to use this thing as if he/she were the owner, and to exclude third persons from using it; provided, however, that unlike the owner, he/she has no right to transfer, mortgage or transfer the thing by inheritance (usufruct). The renting or leasing out of the thing shall require the consent of the owner. After the usufruct is cancelled, the owner shall become a party in the existing tenancy or lease relations.

Law of Georgia No 1826 of 30 June 2005 – LHG I, No 41, 19.7.2005, Art. 284

Article 243 – Legal regulation of creating a usufruct

The rules governing the acquisition of immovable things shall apply to the creation of usufruct.

Article 244 – Kinds of usufruct

1. Usufruct is either onerous or gratuitous.

2. Usufruct may exist either for a fixed term or for the lifetime of its beneficiary (usufructuary). Usufruct shall be cancelled by the death of the natural person or liquidation of the legal person in whose favour the usufruct has been established.

Article 245 – Usufructuary's rights and duties

1. Before the commencement of usufruct the parties may assess the condition of the things transferable by usufruct.

2. The usufructuary may not alter the purpose of use without the consent of the owner.

4. The usufructuary shall not be liable for natural wear and tear of the thing. The usufructuary shall cover the current expenses, make repairs to the thing and take care of the normal economic maintenance of the thing.

5. The usufructuary shall insure the thing for the duration of the usufruct if so provided by law or by agreement of the parties. If the object of usufruct is a state-owned or municipality-owned immovable thing and the usufructuary is a legal entity under public law, or a municipality (where the object of usufruct is owned by other municipality), or a non-entrepreneurial (non-commercial) legal entity established by the State or a municipality, the thing need not be insured.

6. If the thing has been destroyed, damaged, or unexpected expenses have arisen for its maintenance, the usufructuary shall immediately notify the owner accordingly. The usufructuary shall tolerate the measures that the owner undertakes to cure the situation. The owner shall not be obligated to undertake appropriate measures. If the usufructuary itself undertakes these measures, then at the end of the usufruct the usufructuary may remove from the thing the objects attached to it by him/her as a result of such measures or demand from the owner proper compensation for those objects.

7. If the usufructuary transfers, within the limits of normal economic activities, individual objects, then objects acquired by him/her shall take the place of the transferred objects.

Article 358 – Inadmissibility of avoiding a contract

1. In the case of a consumer credit, the beneficiary of the credit may refuse to repay the credit if the counterclaim against the seller arising from a commutative contract relating to such credit would entitle the beneficiary to repudiate the performance of his/her obligation.

2. The contract of sale together with the contract of credit shall constitute an interrelated transaction if the credit serves to finance the purchase price and both contracts are regarded as an economic whole. An economic whole shall be deemed to exist when the seller has participated with the issuer of the credit in the preparation or conclusion of the contract of credit.

made, then the debtor may perform his/her monetary obligation by transfer to this account, except where the creditor is against it.

Article 387 – Order of priority for payment of monetary obligations

1. If a debtor is liable to a creditor for several like performances arising out of various obligations and what has been performed is not enough to pay all the debts, then the obligation chosen by the debtor for satisfaction at the time of performance shall be paid; and if the debtor does not choose, then that debt, which was the first to fall due, shall be paid.

2. If the dates on which claims mature occur simultaneously, then the claim which is the most burdensome for the debtor shall be performed first.

c) he/she shall no longer be entitled to receive interest on a monetary obligation.

Section Three

Breach of Obligations

Chapter One

General Provisions

Article 394 – Claim for damages in cases of breach of obligations

1. If the obligor breaches an obligation, the obligee may claim damages arising from the breach. This rule shall not apply when the obligor is not responsible for breach of the obligation.

2. If the obligor delays performance, the obligee may give the obligor a necessary period of time to perform the obligation. If the obligor does not perform the obligation within such period of time, the obligee may claim damages instead of performance of the obligation.

3. No additional period of time need be given when it is evident that it will not yield any result, or when extraordinary circumstances exist which, in the interests of both parties, justify an immediate claim for damages.

Article 395 – Inadmissibility of preliminarily agreeing on release from liability for damages

1. An obligor shall be liable only for the damages caused by an intentional or negligent action, unless it is otherwise foreseen and unless it otherwise follows from the essence of the obligation.

The obligor shall be liable for performance even if he/she was to receive the object of performance from another person and could not receive it, unless otherwise provided for in the contract or by other circumstances.

Article 398 – Adapting a contract to changed circumstances

1. If the circumstances that were the grounds for the conclusion of a contract have evidently changed after conclusion of the contract, and the parties, had they taken the changes into account, would not have executed the contract or would have executed it with different contents, then it may be demanded that the contract be adapted to the changed circumstances. Otherwise, taking into account individual circumstances, a party to the contract may not be required to strictly observe the unchanged contract.

2. It shall also be regarded as a change in circumstances if the understandings, which constituted the grounds for the conclusion of a contract, prove to be wrong.

3. The parties shall first try to adapt the contract to the changed circumstances. If such adaptation is impossible, or if the other party does not agree, then the party whose interest has been harmed may repudiate the contract.

Article 399 – Repudiation of a long-term relationship of obligation

1. Any party to a contract may repudiate, for a valid reason, a long-term relationship of obligation without observing the period of time fixed for termination of the contract. The reason shall be valid when, taking into account the specific situation, including force majeure and the mutual interests of the parties, the party terminating the contract cannot be required to continue the contractual relationship until the lapse of the agreed period of time or until the expiry of the period of time fixed for termination of the contract.

2. If the grounds for repudiation are also a breach of contractual obligations, then repudiation of the contract shall be allowed only after the period of time fixed for elimination of the deficiencies expires or after a warning proves unsuccessful. Article 405(2) shall apply accordingly.

3. A rightful person may repudiate a contract within a reasonable period of time after the reason for termination has become known to him/her.

4. If, as a result of termination of the contract, any already given performance is no longer of any interest to the rightful person, the termination of the contract may be extended to the already given performance as well. To secure the return of the already given performance, articles 352-354 shall apply accordingly.

5. Article 407 shall apply accordingly to a claim for damages.

If one of the parties to a bilateral contract breaches a contractual obligation, then the other party to the contract may repudiate the contract if the obligation is not performed within an additional period of time fixed by him/her. If, based on the nature of the breach, no additional period of time is afforded, then a warning shall be equivalent to the fixing of an additional period of time. If the obligation is breached only in part, then the obligee may repudiate the contract only if the performance of the remaining part of the obligation is no longer of any interest to him/her.

2. An additional period of time need not be fixed or a warning need not be issued when:

a) it is obvious that it will yield no results;

b) the obligation was not performed within the period of time fixed under the contract, and the creditor has in the contract tied continuation of the relation to the timely performance of the obligation;

c) an immediate termination of the contract is justified for specific reasons, in the mutual interests of the parties.

3. A contract may not be repudiated if:

a) the breach of an obligation is insignificant;

b) the requirements of Article 316(2) have been violated and, notwithstanding that, the obligee may be required to maintain the contract in force;

c) the obligee himself/herself is fully or principally liable for the breach of the obligation;

d) there is a counterclaim against the claim of breach, which the obligor has already asserted or will assert immediately after the repudiation of the contract.

5. The obligor may determine a reasonable period for the obligee to repudiate the contract.

Article 406 – Right to receive counter-performance

1. If under a bilateral contract the obligor has the right to repudiate his/her obligation and the circumstance that gives him/her the right is caused through the obligee's fault, then the obligor shall retain the right to receive counter-performance.

2. This rule shall not apply if the grounds for the counter-performance arose at the time when the obligee was delaying acceptance of the performance.

Article 407 – Compensation for damages in the case of avoiding a contract

1. Upon withdrawing from the contract, the obligee may claim damages incurred by him/her as a result of non-performance of the contract.

2. This rule shall not apply when the reason for the obligee's withdrawal from the contract did not arise through the fault of the obligor.

Section Four

Article 408 – Duty of restitution

1. A person who is liable to pay damages shall restore the state of affairs that would have existed if the circumstances giving rise to the duty to pay damages had not occurred.

2. If, as a result of bodily injury or harm inflicted to the health of a person, his/her ability to work is lost or diminished, or if his/her needs increase, then the injured person shall be compensated for such damage by paying him/her a monthly allowance.

3. The injured person may demand the payment of expenses for medical care in advance. The same rule shall also apply when professional retraining becomes necessary.

4. The injured person may demand compensation instead of allowances, if there is a compelling reason for doing so.

Article 409 – Impossibility of restitution

If damages cannot be paid by restitution or if such restitution would require disproportionately high expenses, then the obligee may be given monetary compensation.

Article 410 – Preliminary renunciation of the right to claim damages

Preliminary renunciation of the right to claim damages due to a breach of an obligation shall be allowed if so provided by law or by agreement of the parties.

Article 412 – Damages to which the duty to pay compensation applies

Only the damages which the debtor could have foreseen and which are the direct consequence of the action causing them shall be compensated.

Article 413 – Compensation for non-property damages

1. Monetary compensation for non-property damages may be claimed only in the cases precisely prescribed by law, in the form of a reasonable and fair compensation.

2. In cases of bodily injury or harm inflicted to a person's health, the injured party may claim non-property damages as well.

Article 414 – Calculation of damages

The interest that the creditor had in due performance of the obligation shall be taken into account when calculating damages. The time and place for performance of the contract shall be taken into account when calculating damages.

Article 415 – Fault of the injured person in causing damages

1. If actions of the injured person contributed to the occurrence of damages, then the duty to compensate and the amount of compensation shall depend on which party was more at fault for the damages.

2. This rule shall apply also when the injured person is at fault because of his/her omission to avoid or reduce harm.

Section Five

2. The liability shall not accrue if the damage is caused by force majeure or by a passenger himself/herself or by his/her baggage.

3. The liability of the carrier may not be excluded or limited by contract.

Article 670 – Obligation to enter into a contract

A person publicly offering the carriage of goods or passengers shall be obligated to enter into a contract of carriage unless there is a basis for refusal.

Article 671 – Carriage by several means of transport

If a loaded motor vehicle is transported across one section of the road by sea, rail or air and the goods are not discharged in compliance with Article 682, the rules of this chapter shall nevertheless apply to the entire carriage.

Article 672 – Form of a contract of carriage

A contract of carriage shall be drawn up in the form of a waybill (or other document). Notwithstanding the nonexistence, defectiveness or loss of the waybill, the content and validity of a contract of carriage shall be determined by the rules of this chapter.

Article 673 – Rules for drawing up a waybill

1. A waybill shall be drawn up in three counterparts signed by the shipper and by the carrier. The first counterpart shall be retained by the shipper, the second shall accompany the freight and the third shall be retained by the carrier.

2. If the freight to be carried is distributed among several means of transport, or if different kinds of freight are involved and/or freight is divided into individual shipments, both the shipper and the carrier may demand that as many waybills be drawn up as there are kinds of freight or means of transport.

Article 674 – Particulars of a waybill

1. A waybill shall include the following particulars:

Law of Georgia No 3806 of 12 November 2010 – LHG I, No 66, 3.12.2010, Art. 414

Article 675 – Liability of the shipper

1. The shipper shall be liable for all the expenses and damages resulting from incorrect or incomplete presentation of:

a) the particulars referred to in Article 674(1)(b), (d), (e), (f), (g), (h) and (j);

b) the data referred to in Article 674(2);

c) all the other data or instructions of the shipper related to drawing up of the waybill or to be entered on the waybill.

2. If the carrier enters, at the request of the shipper, the particulars set forth in paragraph 1 of this article on the waybill, then the carrier shall be deemed to have acted on behalf of the shipper until proven otherwise.

3. If the waybill does not include the data referred to in Article 674(1)(k), then the shipper shall be liable for any expenses and damages incurred to the person entitled to the freight due to the absence of this data.

Article 676 – Liability of the carrier upon acceptance of freight

1. When accepting the freight, the carrier shall inspect:

a) the number of pieces of the freight and the accuracy of the data appearing on the waybill with respect to the marks and numbers of the freight;

b) the external condition of the freight and its packaging.

2. If the carrier lacks appropriate means to inspect the data defined in paragraph 1(a) of this article, then it shall enter on the waybill the conditions to be performed. It shall likewise enter the conditions that pertain to the external condition and packaging of the freight. These conditions shall not be binding upon the shipper except where he/she has clearly acknowledged them in the waybill.

3. The shipper may demand that the carrier verify the weight of the freight or its otherwise indicated quantity. He/she may also demand that the carrier check the contents of the freight. The carrier may demand compensation for the expenses relating to such checks. The results of the inspection shall be indicated in the waybill.

Article 677 – Presumption of execution of a contract of carriage

1. Until proven otherwise, a waybill (or consignment or other forms accepted in the carriage business) shall serve as proof that a contract of carriage has been entered into, its content has been determined and the carrier has taken the freight into its custody.

2. If the waybill does not indicate the conditions of carriage, it shall be presumed, until proven otherwise, that at the time the carrier took the freight into its custody, the freight and its packaging were in good external condition and the number of pieces of the freight, its marks and numbers matched those indicated in the waybill.

Article 678 – Liability of the shipper for damage caused by substandard packaging of freight

The shipper shall be liable to the carrier for any harm or damage caused to persons, materials and other property due to substandard packaging of the freight, as well as for any expenses incurred due to substandard packaging of the freight, except where the defect was obvious, or the carrier knew of the defect when accepting the freight but did not stipulate any condition in this respect.

Article 679 – Obligation of the shipper to provide necessary information

1. The shipper shall attach to the waybill all the documents that are required for the performance of customs formalities and other similar actions before the delivery of the freight, or deliver the documents to the carrier and provide it with all necessary information.

2. The carrier shall not be obligated to examine if these documents and information are accurate and sufficient. The shipper shall be liable to the carrier for any damage caused by the incompleteness or inaccuracy of the documents and data, unless this occurs due to the carrier's fault.

3. The carrier shall be liable for the loss or misuse of the documents delivered to it or the documents indicated in and attached to the waybill; the carrier's liability may not exceed the liability that would have resulted from loss of the freight.

Article 680 – Rights of the shipper

1. The shipper may dispose of the freight or demand termination of the carriage; he/she may also demand that the carrier not change the destination or the freight, or deliver it to any person other than the one indicated in the waybill.

2. This right shall be extinguished as soon as the second counterpart of the waybill is delivered to the consignee or as soon as the consignee exercises his/her rights under the first sentence of Article 681. From that moment on, the carrier shall perform the consignee's instructions.

3. The consignee shall acquire the right of disposal upon the drawing up of the waybill, provided the shipper so indicates in the waybill.

4. If in exercising the right of disposal the consignee instructed that the freight be delivered to a third party, then the third party may not name another consignee.

5. The right of disposal shall be exercised subject to the following rules:

a) if the shipper or, in the case defined under paragraph 3 of this article, the consignee, wishes to exercise his/her right of disposal, he/she shall present the original copy of the waybill containing the new instructions to the carrier, and reimburse the carrier for all the expenses and damages resulting from the performance of these instructions;

b) it shall be possible to perform the instructions when they reach the person who is to perform them, and the instructions may neither impede the carrier's regular business activities nor inflict any damage to other freight of the shipper or of the consignee;

c) the instructions shall not cause division of the freight.

6. If the carrier is unable to fulfil the instructions for the reason indicated in paragraph 5(b) of this article, it shall immediately notify the person who has given the instructions.

7. A carrier not performing instructions given under this article or performing them without having demanded the original copy of the waybill shall be liable to the rightful person for any resulting damage.

Law of Georgia No 1902 of 28 December 2002 – LHG I, No 4, 22.1.2003, Art. 20

Article 681 – Rights of the consignee upon delivery of freight

Upon delivery of the freight to the intended place of delivery, the consignee may demand that the carrier tender the second counterpart of the waybill as confirmation of the receipt of the freight, and with that action the freight shall be deemed to have been delivered. If a shortage of the freight is discovered or if the freight is not delivered within the period of time defined under Article 688, the consignee may exercise in his/her own name the rights arising out of the contract of carriage against the carrier.

Article 682 – Impossibility to perform the contract

1. If, before the acceptance of the freight at the intended place of delivery, it is impossible to perform the contract in compliance with the conditions indicated in the waybill, the carrier shall demand instructions with respect to the freight from the rightful person under Article 680.

2. If the circumstances allow for the carriage to be performed other than under the conditions indicated in the waybill and the carrier is unable to receive, within the appropriate period of time, from the authorised person the instructions with respect to the freight defined under Article 680, it shall take actions that are in the best interests of the authorised person.

Article 683 – Circumstances impeding freight delivery

1. If circumstances impeding the delivery of the freight arise after the arrival of the freight at its destination, the carrier shall demand instructions from the shipper. If the consignee refuses to accept the freight, the shipper may dispose of the freight on his/her own without presenting the original copy of the waybill.

2. Until the carrier receives the shipper's instructions to the contrary, the consignee may demand the delivery of the freight to him/her even if he/she has refused to accept the freight.

3. If circumstances impeding the delivery of the freight arise after the consignee has issued instruction under Article 680(3) to deliver the freight to a third party, then in cases where paragraphs 1 and 2 of this article are applied, the consignee shall take the place of the shipper and the third party shall take the place of the consignee.

Article 684 – Right to claim expenses arising out of the shipper's instructions

1. The carrier may claim the expenses incurred by him/her by reason of receiving or performing instructions, except when these expenses arise through its own fault.

2. In cases provided for in Articles 682(1) and 683, the carrier may urgently unload the freight at the expense of the authorised person; after the unloading, the carriage shall be deemed complete. After that, the carrier shall store the freight for the authorised person. He/she may entrust the storage of the freight to a third party; in that case, he/she shall be liable only for selecting the third party. All claims and expenses arising out of the waybill shall be paid from the value of the freight.

3. Without waiting for instructions from the authorised person, the carrier may sell the freight if the goods are perishable or if the condition of the freight warrants such action and/or if the storage expenses exceed the value of the freight. The carrier may sell the freight in other cases as well, unless he/she receives any instructions from any party within a specified period of time.

4. If the freight is sold according to this article, then the sum, less the expenses relating to the freight, shall be transferred to the authorised person. If the expenses exceed the proceeds, the carrier may claim the difference.

5. The procedure of sale shall be determined according to the laws and customs of the place where the freight is located.

Article 685 – Carrier's lien on the freight

For the expenses arising out of the contract of carriage, the carrier shall have a lien on the freight until he/she is entitled to dispose of the thing.

II – Liability of the Carrier

Article 686 – Concept; content

1. The carrier shall be liable for partial or total loss of the freight and damage caused to it if the freight was lost or damaged from the moment it was accepted up to the moment it was delivered, as well as for delayed delivery.

2. The carrier shall be released from liability if the loss of or damage to the freight or a delayed delivery is caused through the fault of the authorised person and/or because of instructions from that person, for which the carrier is not responsible; also, if the defect of the freight is caused by the circumstances that the carrier could not avoid, nor could the carrier avoid the consequences of those circumstances.

3. The carrier may not claim a defect in the means of transport used for carriage or the fault of the staff of the lessor or lessee of the means of transport to obtain release from liability.

4. In the cases specified in Article 687(2-5), the carrier shall be released from liability if the loss of or damage to the freight was caused by extraordinary danger relating to the following circumstances:

a) an open, uncovered means of transport is used, provided its use was specifically agreed upon and indicated in the waybill;

b) the freight is not packaged or the packaging is substandard that, considering the nature of the freight, presents a risk of the loss of or damage to the freight;

c) the freight is inspected, loaded, stowed or unloaded by the shipper or the consignee or by a third party acting for them;

d) because of the peculiarities of specific freight, there is a risk of partial or total loss or damage, namely the risk of breaking, rusting, corroding, withering, spilling, normal wear and tear or the influence of insects and rodents;

e) the freight to be carried has not been sufficiently marked or numbered;

f) animals are to be carried.

Article 687 – Burden of proof

1. The burden of proving that the loss of or damage to or a delayed delivery of the freight was caused by the circumstances indicated in Article 686(2) shall rest with the carrier.

2. If the carrier proves that, proceeding from the specific circumstances of the case, the loss or damage might have been caused by one or more of the risks indicated in Article 686(4), the damage shall be presumed to have been caused by such risk(s). The authorised person may prove that the damage was not caused by that risk or only by that risk.

3. The presumption specified in paragraph 2 of this article shall not apply if the freight is lost or destroyed in the extraordinary circumstances provided for in Article 686(4)(a).

4. If the carriage is performed by a means of transport that has special equipment for protecting freight from heat, cold, temperature variation or wind, the carrier may resort to Article 686(4) only if he/she proves that he/she has performed the necessary actions with respect to the selection, maintenance and use of the equipment and complied with all the requirements incumbent upon him/her.

5. The carrier may resort to 686(4)(d) only if he/she proves that he/she has performed all actions and instructions incumbent upon him/her.

Article 688 – Delayed delivery of freight

The delivery of freight shall be deemed to have been delayed if the freight is not delivered within the agreed time or, if no time was agreed, within an ordinary period of time required for carriage, considering the circumstances relating to the determination of the time required for assembling parts of the freight when the freight is to be loaded in parts, if the time that a prudent carrier ought to have normally observed has not been observed.

Article 689 – Presumption of the loss of freight

1. The authorised person may deem the freight lost, even without presenting any additional evidence, if the freight is not delivered to its destination within thirty days after the agreed time of delivery expires or, if no such time has been agreed, within sixty days after the carrier accepts the freight.

2. Upon receiving compensation for damages for the lost freight, the authorised person may demand in writing that he/she be promptly notified if the lost freight is found within one year from the day of receipt of compensation for damages. The reply to the demand shall be given also in writing.

3. Within thirty days after receipt of such notification, the authorised person may demand delivery of the freight to him/her after satisfaction of the rights arising out of the waybill, and on condition that he/she returns the compensation received, if necessary, by deducting the expenses incurred from the compensation for damages; his/her claims for damages due to delay in delivery under Articles 692 and 694 shall remain unchanged.

4. If the demand provided for in paragraph 2 of this article is not asserted, or if there is no instruction because of the thirty-day period referred to in paragraph 3, or if the freight is found after the lapse of one year from the date of compensation, then the carrier may dispose of the freight according to the rules that are in force at the place where the freight is located.

Article 690 – Right to demand surcharge

If the freight is delivered to the consignee without payment of the surcharge that should have been paid to the carrier upon delivery of the freight at the place of destination, then the carrier may, by resorting to the right of recourse, claim damages from the shipper.

Article 691 – Hazardous freight shipment rules

1. If a shipper ships a hazardous freight, he/she shall provide the carrier with accurate information and a warning about the freight and, if necessary, insure the freight. If the obligation is not entered on the waybill, then the shipper and the consignee are required to prove by other means that the carrier was precisely aware of the type of the freight and of the expected danger.

2. The carrier may, at any time and place, discharge, destroy or render harmless the hazardous freight, of which he/she had no knowledge under paragraph 1, without any obligation to pay damages; the shipper shall also be liable for the damage and expenses incurred by tendering the freight for carriage or by its carriage.

Article 692 – Value of freight in the case of its partial or total loss

1. If the carrier is obligated under this chapter to pay damages for partial or total loss of the freight, then the damages shall be calculated according to the price of the freight applicable at the place and time of delivering the freight.

2. The value of the freight shall be determined according to a commodity exchange price, and if no such price is available, according to a market price; and if no market price is available, the value shall be determined by analogy to freight of the same kind and value.

3. The cost of carriage, as well as the expenses associated with customs formalities and other similar expenses, shall be refunded in full in the event of a total loss of the freight or in part, in the event of partial loss.

4. If the delivery of the freight is delayed and the authorised person proves that he/she has sustained damages as a result of the delay, the carrier shall compensate the damage only to the extent of the value of the freight. Damages in excess of this value may be claimed only if there was a special interest under Article 694 in this carriage or if the value of the freight was indicated.

Law of Georgia No 3806 of 12 November 2010 – LHG I, No 66, 3.12.2010, Art. 414

Law of Georgia No 5964 of 27 March 2012 – website, 12.4.2012

Law of Georgia No 4925 of 28 June 2019 – website, 4.7.2019

Article 693 – Compensation for damage to freight

1. If the freight is damaged, the carrier shall pay compensation equivalent to the amount by which the value of the freight was reduced and which shall be calculated according to the freight value determined under Article 692(1), (2) and (3).

2. Compensation for damages may not exceed the amount that:

a) ought to have been paid for a total loss of the freight, provided the freight is totally devalued as a result of the damage;

b) ought to have been paid for the loss of a devalued part of the freight, provided only part of the freight is devalued as a result of the damage.

Article 694 – Indicating special interest in a waybill

1. By paying the agreed surcharge, the shipper can indicate in the waybill his/her special interest in the carriage in the event of the loss or damage of the freight or its delayed delivery.

2. If a special interest in the carriage has already been expressed, additional damages in the amount of the special interest expressed may be claimed independently from the compensation for damages provided for in Articles 692 and 693.

Article 695 – Claim of interest on secured compensation for damages

1. The person entitled to the freight may claim interest at the annual rate of five per cent on the damages secured for him/her. The interest begins to accrue from the date a claim is presented to the carrier or, if the claim is not presented, from the date a lawsuit is filed.

2. If the damages are to be paid in a unit of currency that is not effective in the country, and the payment is demanded, the exchange rate shall be determined according to the exchange rate in force on the day and at the place of the payment of the damages.

Article 696 – Non-contractual claims in carriage

1. If any loss, damage or delay occurring in the course of carriage governed by this chapter may give rise to non-contractual claims under the rules in force, then in response the carrier may resort to the rules of this chapter that exclude his/her liability or define and/or limit the amount of damages.

2. If non-contractual claims for the loss, damage or delay are asserted against one of the parties, then the party may resort to the rules of this chapter that exclude his/her liability or define and/or limit the amount of damages.

Article 697 – Inadmissibility of releasing a carrier from liability

A carrier may not resort to the rules of this chapter that exclude or limit his/her liability and/or release him/her from the burden of proof if the damage is caused through his/her fault.

III – Claim and Lawsuit

Article 698 – Concept; content

1. If a consignee accepts the freight without inspecting it together with the carrier and does not assert against the carrier any claim of a general nature for loss or damage, then the consignee shall be deemed, until proven otherwise, to have accepted the freight in the condition indicated in the waybill. The claim shall be asserted on the day that the freight is delivered if the matter concerns externally visible shortages or damages, and in the case of externally invisible shortages or damages, then no later than seven days after the delivery of the freight. In the case of externally invisible shortages or damages, the claim (demand) shall be made in writing.

2. If the consignee and the carrier jointly inspect the condition of the freight, proof contradicting the results of the inspection shall be allowed only in the case of externally invisible shortages or damages and if the consignee does not file a written claim within seven days after receipt of the freight.

3. A claim for damages resulting from delay may be asserted only if the consignee submits to the carrier a written claim within twenty one days after receipt of the freight.

4. The days, on which the freight is shipped, inspected and delivered to the consignee, shall not be counted when calculating the times provided for in this article.

5. The carrier and the consignee shall assist each other in conducting the necessary inspections and establishing the necessary facts.

Article 699 – Limitation period for rights arising out of carriage

The limitation period for rights arising out of the carriage governed by this chapter shall be one year. If intentional misconduct or gross negligence is involved, the limitation period shall be three years. The limitation period shall run:

a) from the day the freight is shipped in cases of partial loss, damage or delay in the delivery of freight;

b) from the twenty-first day after the expiry of the agreed time for the carriage in cases of total loss of the freight or, if no such time was agreed upon, from the sixtieth day after receipt of the freight by the consignee;

c) in all other cases, after the lapse of three months after the day of drawing up the contract of carriage.

Article 700 – Suspension of the limitation period

The limitation period shall be suspended on the basis of a written claim on the day the carrier rejects the claim and returns the attached documents. If the claim is acknowledged in part, the limitation period for the disputed part shall continue to run. The burden of proving the receipt of or response to the claim, as well as the return of the documents shall rest with the person who resorts to them. Other claims concerning the same subject matter shall not suspend the running of the limitation period.

IV – Carriage by Connecting Carriers

Article 701 – Liability during carriage by connecting carriers

If a number of different connecting carriers perform carriage under one contract, each of them shall be liable for the performance of the entire carriage; the second and each subsequent carrier shall become a party to the contract by accepting the freight and the waybill.

Article 702 – Obligation to deliver appropriate documents

1. The carrier accepting the freight from the preceding carrier shall issue a dated document, signed by him/her, confirming the acceptance of the freight. He/she shall indicate his/her name and address on the second counterpart of the waybill. If necessary, the subsequent carrier shall enter on the second counterpart of the waybill the terms provided for in Article 676(2) and the confirmation of receipt of the freight.

2. Relations of connecting carriers shall be regulated by Article 677.

Article 703 – Claiming damages from connecting carriers

Claims for damages for the loss, damage or delay in the delivery of the freight, other than counterclaims and counteractions, may be asserted only against the first carrier, the last carrier or the carrier that was carrying the freight when it was lost, damaged or delayed. The same action may be brought against several carriers.

Article 704 – Right of recourse in the event of compensation for damage

If the carrier has already paid damages under this chapter, he/she shall have the right of recourse in the following cases:

a) if the carrier causing the loss or damage of the freight is solely liable for the damage caused by him/her alone or by several carriers;

b) if the loss of or damage to the freight has been caused by two or more carriers, then each of them shall pay damages in the amount corresponding to their share of liability; and if the share cannot be determined, then each of them shall be liable pro rata to their share in the carriage charges received;

c) if it cannot be determined which carrier is liable for the damages, then all the carriers shall pay the damages according to the proportion defined in subparagraph (b).

Article 705 – Effects of carrier's insolvency

If one of the carriers is insolvent, the amount to be paid but not yet paid by him/her shall be apportioned among the rest of the carriers pro rata to their share in the carriage charges received.

Article 706 – Dispute over the exercised right of recourse

The carrier against whom recourse is sought under Articles 704 and 705 may not assert that the carrier that has exercised the right of recourse paid the damages groundlessly, provided the decision on payment of damages was made by a court and the carrier was duly notified of the litigation and was afforded the opportunity to participate in the litigation.

Article 707 – Mutual agreement among connecting carriers

The carriers may enter into an agreement on the matters different from those defined in Articles 704 and 705.

Article 708 – Invalidity of unlawful agreements

1. Any agreement that directly or indirectly contravenes the rules of this chapter, other than the rules set forth in Article 707, shall be void. The invalidity of such agreements shall not void the rest of the provisions of the entire contract.

2. Any agreement, under which the carrier waives claims arising out of the freight insurance, or any other similar agreement, under which the burden of proof is shifted to another person, shall be void.

Chapter Thirteen

1. The mandator shall be obligated to pay remuneration to the mandatary only if so provided by the contract of mandate or by law.

2. Remuneration shall be deemed to have been tacitly agreed if, considering the circumstances involved, the performance of the action is expected only against remuneration.

3. If the amount of remuneration is not determined, then if some tariff schedule exists, a tariff rate shall be considered to be the agreed remuneration, or, if no tariff schedule exists, an ordinary remuneration.

Article 711 – Transferring a mandate to a third person

1. The mandatary shall perform the mandate personally, except when he/she is permitted or compelled by the circumstances to transfer the mandate to a third party. The involvement of assisting persons shall be allowed.

2. If the transfer of the mandate to a third party is permitted, then the mandatary shall be liable only for his/her fault in connection with the transfer and in the selection of the person.

Article 712 – Deviation from the mandator's instructions

1. The mandatary shall be obligated to perform the mandator's instructions.

2. The mandatary may deviate from the instructions of the mandator if, because of the circumstances, he/she may assume that the mandator would approve such deviation if he/she were aware of the factual situation. The mandatary shall give the mandator notice before such deviation and wait for the decision of the mandatory, unless postponement entails danger to the mandatary.

3. If a mandatary's performance of instructions may inflict significant damage to the mandator, the mandatary may perform the instructions only after he/she notifies the mandator of the damage and the mandator does not change the instructions.

Article 713 – Duty of information

1. The mandatary shall be obliged to provide the mandator with the required information and, at the mandator's demand, keep him/her informed on the status of the mandated task, and after carrying out the mandate to render an account for it.

2. An agreement subsequently limiting or excluding the mandator's duty under paragraph 1 of this article shall be made in writing.

Article 714 – Duty to keep secrets

1. The mandatary may not disclose facts that have become known to him/her within the scope of his/her activity and in the confidentiality of which the mandator has a legitimate interest, unless the disclosure of the secret is required by law or permitted by the mandator.

2. The duty of non–disclosure of facts shall survive the end of contractual relations.

Law of Georgia No 1902 of 28 December 2002 – LHG I, No 4, 22.1.2003, Art. 20

Article 715 – Duty to return the thing received for performing the mandate

1. The mandatary shall be obliged to return to the mandator everything that he/she receives to perform the mandate and does not use for it, as well as everything that he/she obtains from performing the mandate.

2. If the mandatary spends money for himself/herself that he/she ought to have returned to or spent for the mandator, then the mandatary shall return the money with the accrued interest.

Article 716 – Presumption of mandator's ownership of property

The property that the mandatary has acquired on his/her own behalf and at the mandator's expense when performing the mandate and or received from the mandator to perform the mandate shall be presumed to be the mandator's property in the mandatary's relations with creditors.

Article 717 – Duty to reimburse expenses

1. The mandator shall reimburse the necessary expenses that the mandatary incurred to perform the mandate.

2. The claim specified in paragraph 1 of this article shall not arise if the expenses are to be paid from the remuneration.

3. The mandatary may demand from the mandator advance payment for the expenses for which he/she is to receive compensation.

Article 718 – Reimbursement of damages occurring through no fault

1. The mandator shall be obligated to reimburse also the damages that the mandatary sustains when performing the mandate, even if there was no fault on the mandator's part, provided the damage occurred as a result of a substantial danger involved in the performance of the mandate according to the mandator's instructions.

2. The claim under paragraph 1 of this article shall not arise if the damage is to be paid from the remuneration or if the damage is caused by the mandatary's action. If the payment of the damages from the remuneration is disputed, then the burden of proof shall rest on the mandatary.

Article 719 – Reimbursement of damages caused by culpable action

If the mandatary gratuitously performs the mandate, he/she shall be liable only for damages caused by intentional misconduct or gross negligence.

Article 720 – Termination of a contract of mandate

1. The parties may terminate a contract of mandate at any time. Any agreement to waive this right shall be void.

2. If the mandatary terminates the contract when the mandator is unable to secure his/her interests otherwise, the mandatary shall compensate the damage caused by the termination, except where the mandatary has a valid reason to terminate the contract.

3. If the mandator revokes the contract, then he/she shall reimburse the mandatary of all the necessary expenses incurred to perform the mandate and if the contract stipulated payment, to pay remuneration for the work performed.

Article 721 – Effects of a mandator's death or recognition as a beneficiary of support

If the surety undertakes liability jointly or in another equivalent form, then the claim may be asserted against him/her even without the attempt of forced execution, if the principal debtor exceeded the payment due date and has been given a notice to no effect or if his/her insolvency is obvious.

Article 896 – Liability of co-sureties

If several persons are sureties for the same obligation, then they shall be jointly and severally liable even if they do not assume suretyship jointly.

Article 897 – Liability for the obligations assumed by previous sureties

A surety who has undertaken to a creditor to discharge the obligations assumed by previous sureties shall be jointly liable with them in the same manner as, ordinarily, a surety is liable jointly with the principal debtor.

Article 898 – Extent of the surety's liability

1. The surety shall in any case be liable only to the extent of the maximum amount indicated in the document of suretyship.

2. Unless otherwise agreed, the surety shall be liable to the extent of that maximum amount:

a) for the corresponding amount of the principal debt, in particular, including when the principal debt has changed due to the principal debtor's fault or due to delay in payment. The surety shall be liable for contractual penalties or for the total amount of damages that were stipulated up to the end of the contract, only if so specifically agreed;

b) for the contract termination expenses and court charges that are to be compensated by the principal debtor, provided the surety had the possibility to avoid the expenses by satisfying the creditor;

c) for the interest payable by the principal debtor under the contract, if so expressly agreed.

Article 899 – Defences of surety

1. The surety may assert the defences to which the principal debtor is entitled. If the principal debtor dies, the surety may not invoke the fact that the heir has limited liability.

2. The surety shall not be deprived of the right to assert defences by the fact that the principal debtor has waived this right.

Article 900 – Surety's refusal to satisfy the creditor

The surety may refuse to satisfy the creditor as long as the principal debtor is entitled to dispute the transaction on which the obligation is based.

Article 901 – Reduction of the surety's liability

If the creditor, to the detriment of the surety, reduces the liens or other means or advantages of security, then the surety's liability shall be reduced by an amount corresponding to the above-mentioned reduction.

Article 902 – Effect of delayed payments by the principal debtor

1. If the principal debtor's payment is overdue, the creditor shall notify the surety. At the request of the surety, the creditor shall, at any time, provide him/her with information on the status of the principal debt.

2. If the creditor fails to perform one of these actions, he/she shall forfeit his/her claims against the surety to the extent of the damages caused by the non-performance.

Article 903 – Termination of an open-ended contract of suretyship

1. If the suretyship is open-ended, then the surety must give a three-month notice to terminate the contract.

2. For a fixed-term suretyship, after the lapse of five years, the contract may be terminated by giving a three-month notice.

3. In the case of unilateral termination, the surety shall perform the obligations undertaken before the termination.

Article 904 – Grounds for releasing a surety from suretyship obligations

1. If a surety provides a suretyship on the principal debtor's instructions, or if he/she is entitled, under the rules governing agency without specific authorisation, as a result of assuming the suretyship, to the rights of an agent against the principal debtor, then he/she may demand release from the suretyship if:

a) the property status of the principal debtor has substantially deteriorated;

b) pursuit of rights against the principal debtor is made appreciably more difficult due to a change of residence or location after assumption of the suretyship;

c) the creditor has obtained an order of forced execution against the surety.

2. If the primary obligation has not yet fallen due, the principal debtor may provide security to the surety instead of releasing him/her.

Article 905 – Effects of satisfaction of creditors by the surety

If a surety satisfies the creditor, the creditor's claim against the principal debtor shall pass to the surety. The defences of the principal debtor arising out of his/her relationship with the surety shall remain unaffected.

Chapter Twenty-three

1. Under a current account agreement, the parties undertake to credit the claims and payments arising out of their business relations to an account and deem them intact until the account is closed.

2. The balance of the account shall be paid within the agreed time. If at the closing of the account the party rightful to the balance does not demand payment, then it shall be credited to the current account.

3. Closing of the account shall give rise to a claim for the balance that, for purposes of performance, substitutes the claim placed on the current account.

4. The account shall be closed once a year unless stipulated otherwise.

Article 907 – Cancellation of current accounts

In case of doubt, a current account may be cancelled and the account closed at any time.

2. The rule laid down in paragraph 1 of this article shall apply even when there is joint and several liability for the claim.

Article 910 – Attachment

If a creditor of one of the parties to the agreement obtains an attachment order against the balance in the current account, which belongs to the debtor, then the parts of the debt arising out of a new transaction made after the attachment order has been issued shall not be considered in relation to the creditor. A transaction that has already been made on the basis of claims existing before the transaction shall not be regarded as a new transaction.

2. The genuineness of the signature on the issued document may depend on the observance of a special form indicated in the document. The signature may be made in any technically possible way.

Article 912 – Defences of the issuer

The issuer of the document may assert against the holder of the security only those defences that relate to the validity of the execution, the document itself or that the issuer has directly against the holder.

Article 913 – Procedure for transfer of rights

1. The right defined in the document shall be transferred according to the rules governing the transfer of movable things. It may also be transferred by a contract concluded with a third party.

2. A person who acquires a document lost in some way shall be deemed to be the legitimate holder, except where he/she acquired the document by intentional misconduct or gross negligence.

Article 914 – Rights of the issuer

1. The issuer may raise objections against the holder on the grounds that the security was not issued by him/her. In addition, he/she may assert against the holder any defences arising out of the document.

2. If the issuer uses technical means to sign a document, he/she may not defend himself/herself against the holder by stating that he/she had no right to use this method, except when the acquirer was aware of counterfeiting or acted by gross negligence.

3. If the document is transferred to the holder, the issuer may not assert against him/her any defences arising out the issuer's direct relationship with the previous holder of the document, except where the subsequent holder acted intentionally to the prejudice of the issuer when acquiring the document.

4. If the defence does not arise out of direct relationship, then it may be asserted only against the holder who acquired title to the document by way of alienation and in doing so acted by intentional misconduct or gross negligence.

Article 915 – Duty of the issuer

1. The issuer shall be obligated to perform his/her duties only if the document is delivered to him/her.

2. The debtor who performs his/her obligations to the holder of the document shall be released from his/her duty, unless he/she acted by intentional misconduct or gross negligence and can prove the holder's bad faith.

3. The debtor who is released from his/her obligations to the holder of the document shall acquire title to the document delivered to him/her.

Article 916 – Re-registration of bearer securities

Only the issuer may re-register bearer securities in the name of a certain person. At the same time, the issuer shall not be obligated to re-register bearer securities.

Article 917 – Replacement of securities unfit for circulation

If a damaged bearer security is no longer fit for circulation, the holder may demand the issue of a new bearer security in return for delivery of the damaged document, as long as the content and essential distinguishing features of the document can still be identified. The relating expenses shall be borne and prepaid by the holder.

Article 918 – Invalidation of securities

1. A lost or destroyed security may be declared invalid by a court unless the document otherwise provides.

2. The issuer shall provide the previous holder, when requested, with information necessary for a court to consider the invalidation of the security and prohibition of payment. The issuer shall also issue the corresponding certificate. The expenses of the issue of the certificate shall be paid in advance by the previous holder.

Article 919 – Issuing new bearer documents

A person who has obtained a declaration of invalidity of a promissory note made out to bearer, regardless of the exercise of the claim arising out of the document, may demand that the issuer issue a new bearer document in the place of the invalid one. The person shall pay the expenses of the issue in advance.

Article 920 – Limitation period on claims

The limitation period on claims arising out of securities shall be thirty years from the maturity date of the obligations defined in the documents.

Article 921 – Issuing promissory notes of small value

If the issuer has issued promissory notes or similar documents of small value, in which the creditor is not indicated, and the circumstances of the case show that the issuer is willing to pay to the holder, the rules of Article 911(1), Articles 913-915 and Article 920 shall apply.

II – Obligations arising out of negotiable securities

1. The right defined in the note may be assigned by endorsement and delivery of the note.

2. The endorsement shall be made on the note or on its enclosure. The use of a technical device shall be allowed.

3. The endorsement does not require the indication of the endorsee and may contain only a signature (blank endorsement). The authorised holder may fill in the blank endorsement in his/her name or on behalf of another, issue the blank note or subsequently endorse the note himself/herself to the designated person.

Article 924 – Procedure for using notes acquired by endorsement

If a promissory note made out to order is acquired by endorsement, then Article 914 shall apply accordingly.

Article 925 – Payment in the case of subsequent endorsements

1. The holder of a negotiable security confirmed by subsequent endorsements may demand the promised payment in return for the delivery of the signed document, except when he/she is not entitled to it.

2. Payment to a non-rightful person who has confirmed his/her right through subsequent endorsements shall release the debtor unless the debtor acted intentionally or by gross negligence.

3. A debtor who has performed his/her duty before the endorsee shall become the owner of the document delivered to him/her.

Article 926 – Claims guaranteed in writing

If negotiable securities guarantee in writing not only claims of small value, the rules governing the invalidation and issue of documents substituting bearer promissory notes shall apply accordingly.

Article 927 – Limitation period of claims

The rules governing bearer promissory notes shall apply accordingly to the limitation of claims arising out of promissory notes made out to order.

III – Personal Securities

Article 928 – Concept

2. Unless otherwise determined, the right given in the document shall be assigned under the rules laid down for this right.

3. If the document is lost or destroyed, it shall be declared invalid under a special procedure, unless otherwise stipulated. This rule shall not apply to the loss of documents of small value.

Article 929 – Instruction on the promised payment

If a document made out to a designated person contains an instruction that the promised payment may be made to any bearer, then any transaction, including payment, between the debtor and the holder of the document shall be valid, unless the debtor acted intentionally or by gross negligence.

Chapter Twenty-five

Under a partnership agreement, two or more persons undertake to jointly act towards achieving a common business or other goals in the manner defined by the agreement, without creating a legal person.

Article 931 – Form of a partnership agreement

1. A partnership agreement may be made in writing or orally.

2. If the agreement is made in writing, it shall include:

a) names and addresses of the partners;

b) details on the type and goals of the partnership;

c) rights and duties of the partners;

d) structure and function of management bodies;

e) terms and conditions for distributing revenues and losses between the partners;

f) procedure for withdrawing from the agreement;

g) duration of the partnership;

h) procedure for termination of the agreement and distribution of the remaining assets.

Article 932 – Obligation to make contribution

1. The partners shall make contributions as determined under the agreement. If the amount of contribution is not determined under the agreement, the partners shall make equal contributions.

2. Contributions may be made in the form of property or services.

3. Unless the agreement provides otherwise, the contributions shall be the joint property of the partners. The joint property of the partners shall also include whatever is purchased under a co-ownership right or received as compensation for the destruction, damage or seizure of the joint property.

Article 933 – Inadmissibility of transferring a partner's share to third persons

1. A partner's share in the form of property or right may not be transferred to a third party without the consent of the other partners to the agreement. Consent may be withheld only for a valid reason.

2. The remaining partners to the agreement shall have a pre-emptive right to buy the share transferrable to a third party.

Article 934 – Obligation of joint management

1. Unless the agreement provides otherwise, the partners shall jointly manage the affairs and represent the partnership with third parties. Each transaction shall require the approval of all partners. If under the partnership agreement a majority of votes is sufficient to make decisions, this majority shall be determined according to the total number of partners, not by the amount of contribution.

2. If the partnership agreement entitles one or more partners to conduct business in such a way that each is authorised to act on his/her own, then each may object to the undertaking of a transaction by another partner. In the case of such objection, the transaction shall not be made.

3. If under the partnership agreement one of the partners is vested with the authority to manage the partnership business, in case of doubt he/she shall represent the other partners with third parties and the transactions concluded by such partner shall be valid.

4. A partner may be deprived of the authority to manage the partnership business by a majority of votes and only if he/she commits a gross breach of contractual duties. The partner may refuse to take part in the management of the partnership business. Such person may at any time demand from the board the information necessary for him/her.

5. Unless the agreement provides to the contrary, the rights and duties of managing partners shall be determined according to the rules governing a mandate.

Article 935 – Procedure for distribution of revenues

1. Unless the agreement provides otherwise, revenues shall be distributed among the partners according to their shares.

2. Each partner may demand that all the remaining partners perform their duties under the partnership agreement in good faith.

The claims to which the partners are entitled against each other under the partnership agreement shall not be transferred to other persons.

Article 937 – Joint and several liability of partners

1. The partners shall be jointly and severally liable for debts arising out of partnership activities. The liability with respect to each other shall be determined according to the shares of the partners, unless the agreement provides otherwise.

2. The partners shall not be obligated to disclose confidential information obtained as a result of the partnership.

Article 938 – Termination by a partner

1. If the agreement does not specify the period of the partnership, then each partner may terminate it at any time. The agreement may not be terminated when or if the termination is prejudicial to the partnership.

2. If the period of the partnership is specified by agreement of the partners, the agreement may be terminated if there is a valid reason.

3. The termination by one of the partners shall terminate the partnership. The agreement may provide for the termination by one of the partners without terminating the partnership. In that case, the share of the terminating partner shall be apportioned among the other partners. The terminating partner shall be given monetary compensation for the share. At the same time, an account shall be taken of the transactions still not performed at the time of termination. If at the time of termination the joint assets are too little to cover the joint liabilities, the terminating partner shall pay the remaining partners the amount corresponding to his/her share. The terminating partner's liability to creditors existing at the moment of termination shall remain unchanged.

4. Any agreement excluding or limiting the right of a partner to terminate the agreement shall be void.

Article 939 – Grounds for terminating a partnership

1. The grounds for terminating a partnership shall be:

a) the expiry of the agreed period of the partnership;

b) the decision of the participants;

c) the institution of bankruptcy proceedings relating to the partnership assets;

b) the opening of bankruptcy proceedings against the assets of one of the partners;

c) dissolution of the agreement.

Article 940 – Procedure for terminating a partnership

1. Upon termination of a partnership, transactions still outstanding shall be completed, an inventory shall be drawn up, and the remaining assets shall be distributed among the partners pro rata to their shares.

2. At the time of distributing the assets, the debts accrued during the partnership shall be paid. If the assets are too little to pay the debts, the partners to the agreement shall be obligated to pay the debts pro rata to their shares.

Article 947 – Payment of annuity in kind

Under an in-kind annuity contract the parties may agree to substitute money for an in-kind annuity.

Article 948 – Risk of accidental destruction or damage of the transferred property

Article 949 – Termination of life annuity contracts

1. Both the issuer and the annuitant may terminate the life annuity contract if a breach of contractual obligations makes the relationship between the parties intolerable or other substantial reasons complicate or prevent its continuation.

2. Upon termination of the contract, transferred real estate shall be returned to the annuitant and the expenses incurred before termination of the contract shall not be reimbursed to the annuitant unless the contract provides otherwise.

Article 950 – Effect of the death of the issuer

1. If the agency is intended to avert a danger threatening the principal, then the agent shall be liable only for deliberate intent or gross negligence.

2. An agent who has sustained damages while averting a danger actually facing another person or property even though the aversion of the danger was not his/her legal duty, shall be reimbursed for such damages by the person who created the danger or by the person whose goods the manager tried to salvage.

Chapter Three

Unjust Enrichment

Article 976 – Grounds for claims against pseudo creditors

1. A person who has transferred something to another person as a result of the performance of an obligation may claim it back from the pseudo creditor (recipient) if:

a) the obligation does not exist, will not arise, or was subsequently terminated due to invalidity or other reasons;

b) a defence has been asserted against the obligation which excludes the assertion of the claim for a long period of time.

2. Return of the property may not be claimed if:

a) the performance complies with moral duties, or

b) the limitation period has elapsed, or

c) the recipient could presume that the performing person was willing to transfer the benefit irrespective of whether or not the conditions of paragraph 1 of this article exist, or

d) the claim for return of property in the case of performing a void debt contract contradicts the protective function of the provisions governing invalidity.

Article 977 – Inadmissibility of claiming back transferred property

1. A person who transfers something to another person not for performance of an obligation but in order for the latter to perform or not to perform some action, may reclaim the transferred thing if the transferee's action does not correspond to the intended result.

2. The claim for return of property shall be excluded if:

a) the occurrence of the result was impossible from the outset and the transferor was aware of it, or

b) the transferor prevented achievement of the result in bad faith.

Article 978 – Claim for return of property transferred under duress or threat

A person who transfers something to another person not for performing an obligation but under duress or threats, may reclaim it, except when the recipient had the legal right to what had been transferred to him/her.

Article 979 – Scope of claims for return of property

1. A claim for return of property shall extend to property acquired, the benefits received as well as to all that the recipient has obtained as a reimbursement for the destruction, damage or deprivation of the received thing.

2. If restitution is impossible due to the condition of the transferred thing or if the recipient cannot return the thing for another reason, then he/she shall reimburse the total value of the thing. The value shall be determined according to the time of the origin of the claim for return of the property.

3. There shall be no reimbursement obligation if the recipient has not been enriched by either the thing or its value, due to the use, transfer, destruction or deterioration of the thing or for any other reason.

4. When the parties to a bilateral contract are to return what they have received from the contract due to invalidity of the contract, but one of the parties is unable to return it for the reasons provided for in paragraph 2 of this article, then that party shall not be liable to return it if it follows from the essence of the legal provision under which the contract was voided.

5. Destruction or deterioration of the object of performance, for which the performer would be liable if the contract were valid, shall always release the recipient from the obligation of restitution.

Article 980 – Procedure for reimbursement of expenses and losses

1. If the recipient incurs expenses or suffers property loss because he/she believes that he/she has acquired the thing permanently, then he/she shall return the thing provided he/she is reimbursed for the expenses and losses. This rule shall not apply if the transferred thing cannot reasonably be considered to have been acquired permanently.

2. The reimbursement obligations under Articles 979 and 980 shall be performed simultaneously. The expenses and risk of return of the property shall be borne by the performer.

Article 981 – Liability to pay damages

1. If the recipient, at the time of receipt, is aware of a defect in the legal basis or if he/she learns it later due to gross negligence, or if the claim for restitution is pending in court, then the recipient shall be liable from the moment he/she became aware of the defect or from the moment the claim is filed in court – under Article 979(1) and (2), Article 980 and the rules set forth below.

2. If the recipient does not receive the benefits that he/she could have received from proper management of the property, then he/she shall be liable to pay damages if he/she is at fault. Interest shall be paid on a monetary debt. Any income received from the thing shall be returned.

3. If the thing transferred for performance is destroyed or deteriorated, the recipient shall be liable to pay damages if he/she is at fault. The recipient may, under the rules governing agency without specific authorisation, claim the expenses that he/she incurred on the object of the performance. No expenses other than necessary ones shall be reimbursed.

4. These rules shall not apply to the liability of a debtor for delay.

Article 982 – Effects of encroachment upon the legal goods of others
